ALLENDALE

SCHOOL

First assembly in new building, September 1958

THE REASON . . .

Development and growth has been very evident at Allendale this year—in the student body, in interest by parents, friends and faculty, and in better facilities.

This year saw the largest student body in history with a very interested and prolific faculty to accompany it. The school has benefited greatly from aid freely given by parents and friends as well as the behind-scenes efforts of the Board of Trustees. New floor surfaces, an additional classroom, a dining room, a new faculty room and a modern kitchen were additional evidences of development.

In concrete and abstract ways, this has been a period of spirited hopes and definite progress. The staff of the Clavus takes note of this progress as the dominant theme of the year and feels that this period of achievement is both significant in itself and indicative of the future.

DEDICATION

We, the Senior class of 1959, proudly dedicate the Clavus to Frank P. Gage, who believes we can do anything he puts his mind to. Working closely with the headmaster, as assistant to Mr. Critchlow in the Lower School, Mr. Gage has endeavored to build character and confidence in the younger members so that they may better represent Allendale. A Clavus advisor, his enthusiastic help and keen judgement have been inestimable. He has stimulated and broadened the literary tastes of his many charges; his contributions to the high standing of Allendale's Lower School are recognized by all.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

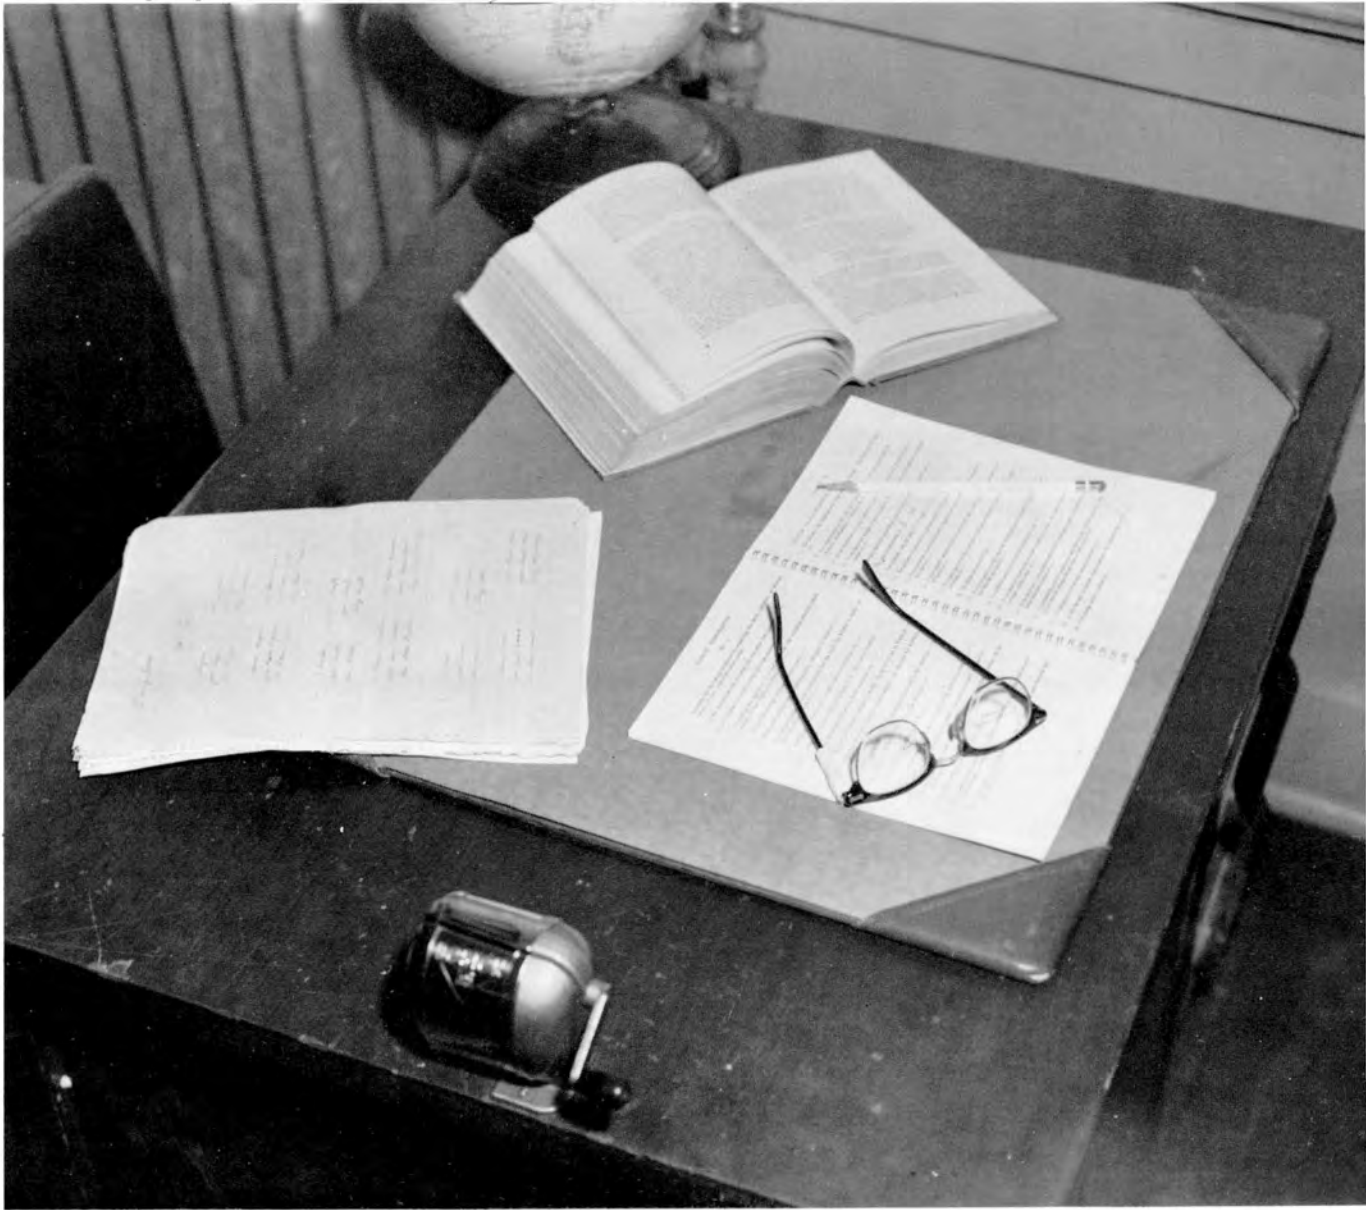

The activities this year of the Board of Trustees have centered around the theme of development. It has been a most ambitious year with the completion of a new dining room and kitchen, the first major construction since 1947. They have shown much personal interest in school affairs, have been seen frequently at many school functions, and several attended the annual Secondary Education Board conference in New York. With this enthusiastic and substantial support the Board of Trustees of Allendale continue to make themselves a vital part of the school scene.

HEADMASTER

To Buell Critchlow, Headmaster, the Class of 1959 owes a debt of gratitude for his inspiration, tact, and leadership. We of the Senior Class are especially grateful to him for all his assistance in smoothing the long, rough road toward college.

As a class we wish to add our modicum of appreciation to all that has been given him by previous classes. To you, sir, our heartfelt thanks and gratitude.

ROBERT ALEXANDER CALHOUN

Entered—1957

Bob's plentiful supply of plaid shirts and brazenly bright bow ties has given this taciturn young man his stamp. Bus sleeper deluxe, he still is a fast boy when it comes to slaloming on the ski slopes or to schussing in the classroom. Quiet and reserved, yet fiercely independent, Bob is somewhat of a mystery to his classmates. His quietness can be attested to by those who have heard him say more in a phrase than most people say in a paragraph. His independence and determination are evident to all who have tried to coerce him.

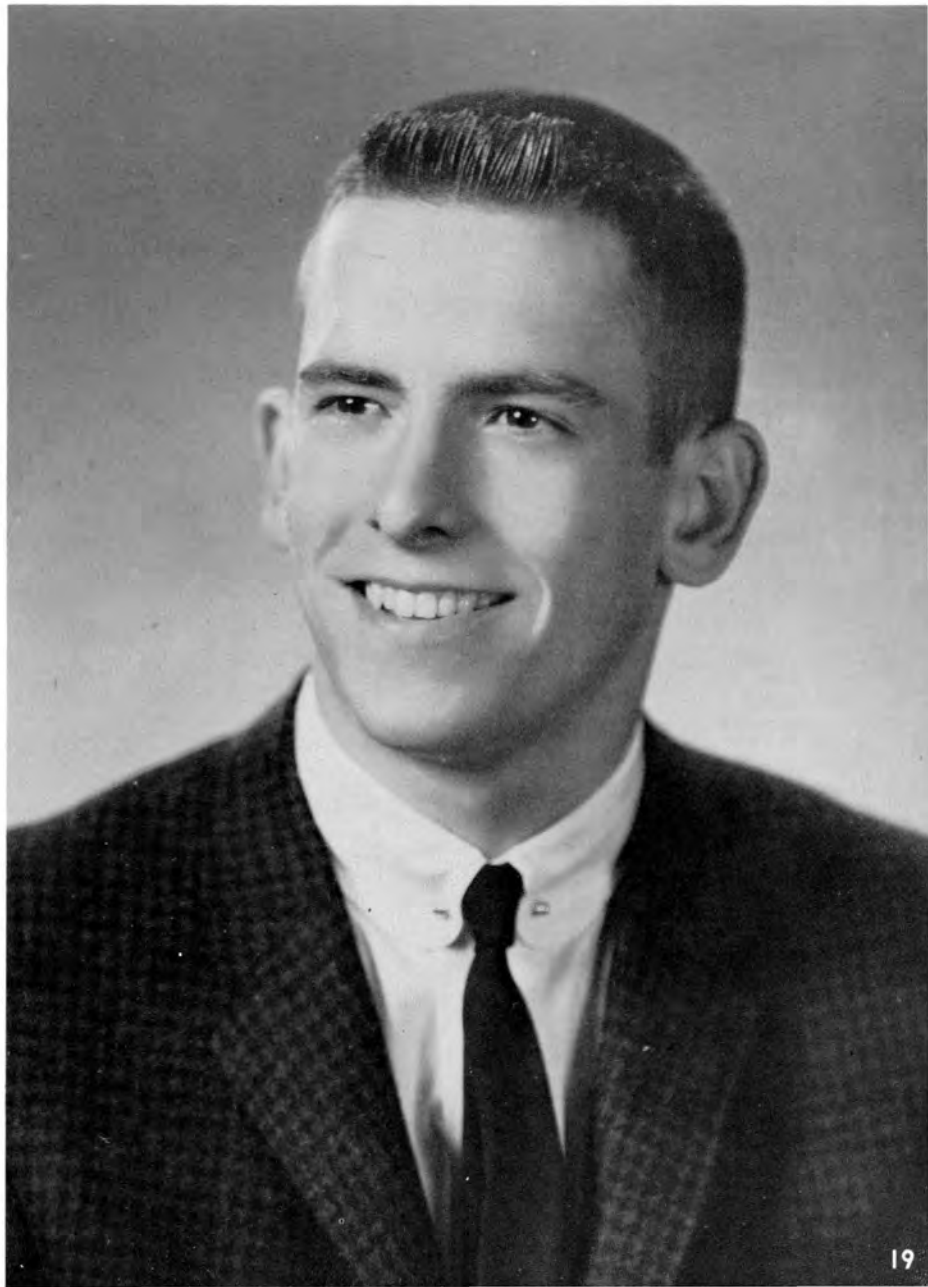

GUY MacNAIR COMFORT

Entered—1957

Guileless Guy, hoedown hermit of Henrietta, has, in two short years, carved quite a niche for himself. Captain of football, fast comer in basketball, past master at the hot corner, he is truly a three-letter man. Steadily and quietly, he has earned recognition by his classmates and the goodwill of those who have worked with him on the many projects in which he has participated—one of the most important being President of the Senior Council. Sometimes accused of being an Indian, this dark haired dandy has proven beyond all doubt to be true ballast to a class which at times found the going rough—to quote his favorite subject, “Semper fidelis.”

BUELL CRITCHLOW JR.

Entered—1953

Brother Butch, better known as the benign burden bearer, has had the painful plight of being a head master's son, but not one of his classmates can say that he has let it get him down. He was the heart and fire of the soccer team and was recognized as such by his selection on the All Cups. Again his competitive spirit was pointed up by his election as Captain of Track. As an indication of his diversity, he operated energetically as Vice-President of the Student Council and Co-editor of the struggling—but not dead—Clavus. This lad, who has had his finger in many pies, has managed to pluck out the plum and come up unscathed and unscorched.

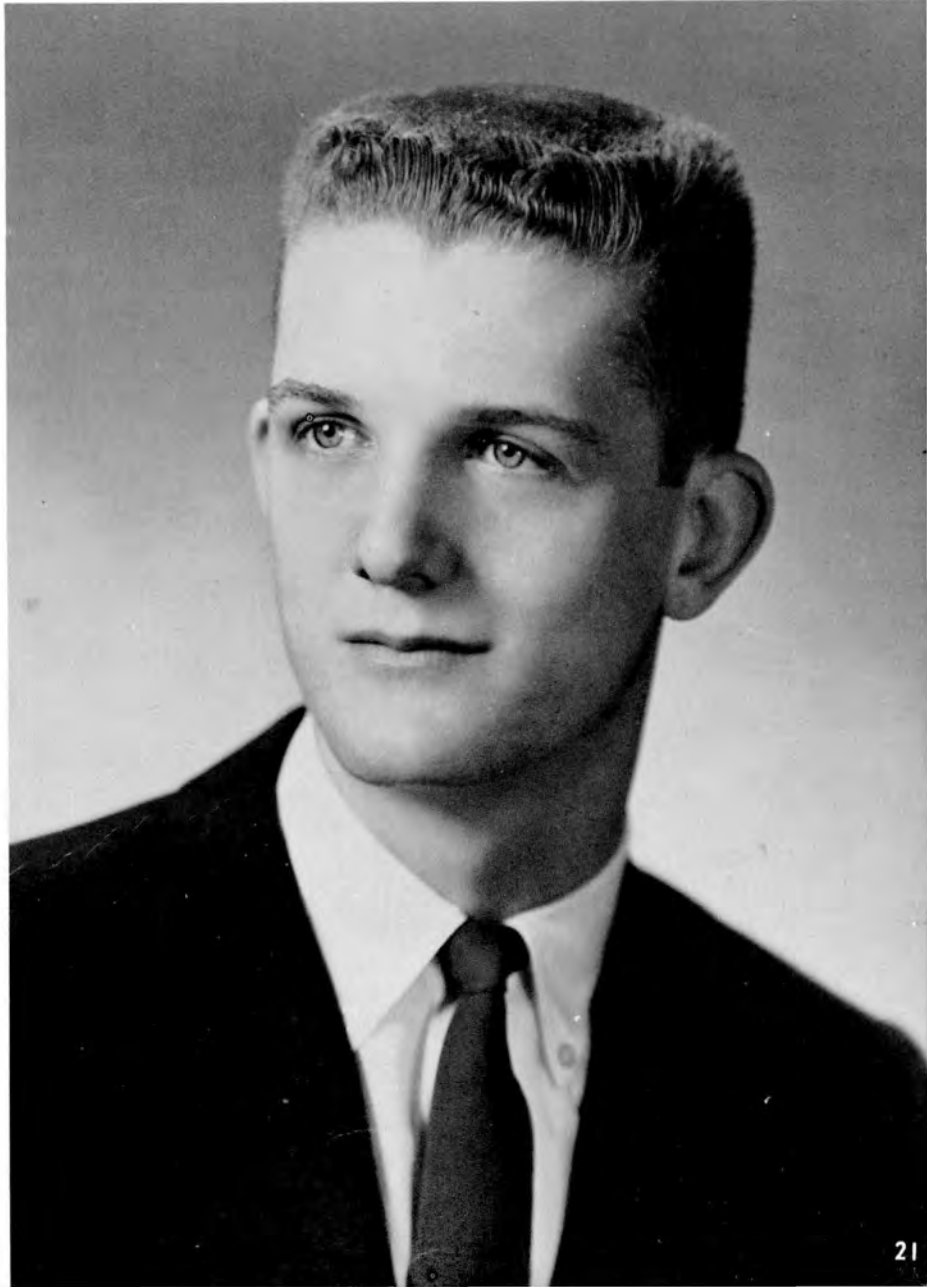

JAMES WALTER DORSCHEL

Entered—1958

Gentleman Jim Dorschel, like March, came in like a lamb last fall as our only new senior. In no time at all his great gift of polished politeness and his willingness to lend his time and energy to any good cause has been a great asset to the class. As Varsity soccer linesman this fall, Jim effectively showed his potential and scrappiness in the latter part of the season, and proved to be a fine rebound artist in basketball. Slim Jim has shown a penchant for responsibility and leadership, and next year's senior class will be hard put to find a facsimile—near or exact—to fit this fellow's shoes.

STEPHEN WEBB EDGERTON

Entered—1957

Eager Edgerton started his senior year flat on his face—in football of course. Often on the bottom of the pile, always anxious to be up and at 'em, Steve really produced for the team—a pattern that he has continued all year by quietly pulling his weight for the class in all endeavors. A hilarious nature hidden under a quiet exterior have allowed this lad to bring fun and frolic to many of his classmates, as well as to Tim Allyn. His frequent donations of Mrs. W's chocolate confections to his lucky dining companions has added to his already substantial popularity.

HOWARD LINDEN FARNSWORTH

Entered—1950

Bo, the old man of the class, having been at Allendale since his chubby fourth grader days, is the class playboy and was once identified by the screech of tires and the blast of mufflers. When tickets became too rich for his diet, Bo's tastes went conservative. His excellence in things mechanical has worked him up from an old Ford through eleven consecutive jalopies. Often mistaken for Santa Claus because of his keen interest and devoted work for the annual Christmas Baskets drive, he could often be seen peddling pages for cold cash to our loyal Clavus advertisers.

FREDERIC WILLIAM FISHER II

Entered—1957

Free-wheeling Fred entered Allendale as a junior and in almost no time found his spot with his gift of gab and his personality plus. The old "gray shay" a thing of the past, he now patronizes the bus to serve the feminine interests of Pittsford. Swimming is his forte, as shown by excellent pool record. A good student, he has a wealth of information which he freely contributes to any class. A natty dresser, and a debonair diplomat, Fred will make his mark, or we miss our guess.

JOHN SAMUEL GERLING

Entered—1957

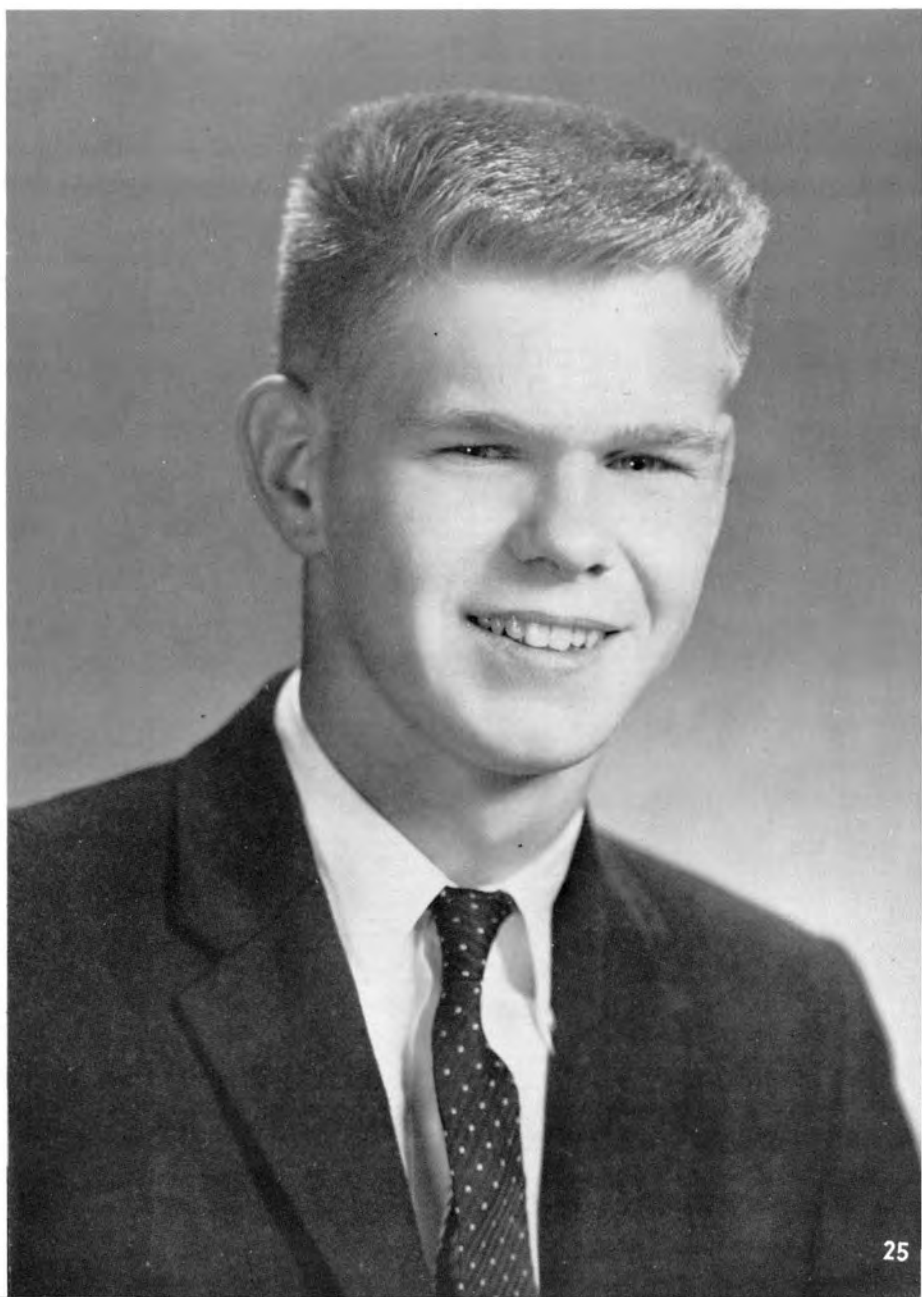

Genial, glamorous Gerling—great gun of the basketball floor and glittering gem of the baseball diamond—is a quiet character in a somewhat noisy class. Jon's long gaunt frame draped around a study hall desk is a trademark no faculty member can forget. As co-editor of the Clavus he brought a quiet breath to an already somnolent staff. His graceful garnering of goals via his favorite set shot route made him the idol of the grandstand crowd.

EVERETT PARKER HALL, JR.

Entered—1954

One of the old grads of the grade school group, Ev has become deeply attached to what he calls "these hallowed halls of beaverboard." No sports personality with the exception of his effective if flurried managership of the track team—effervescent Ev has managed to make his presence felt through various committees and the Crow's Nest, of which he is editor. As class treasurer, he has become the mighty miser in a fight against time to obtain enough money to assure the class's intended gift to the school. To top that off, he has worked feverishly to make good the Crow's Nest's goal of ten issues. The candy sale without huckster Hall presiding will seem stale indeed.

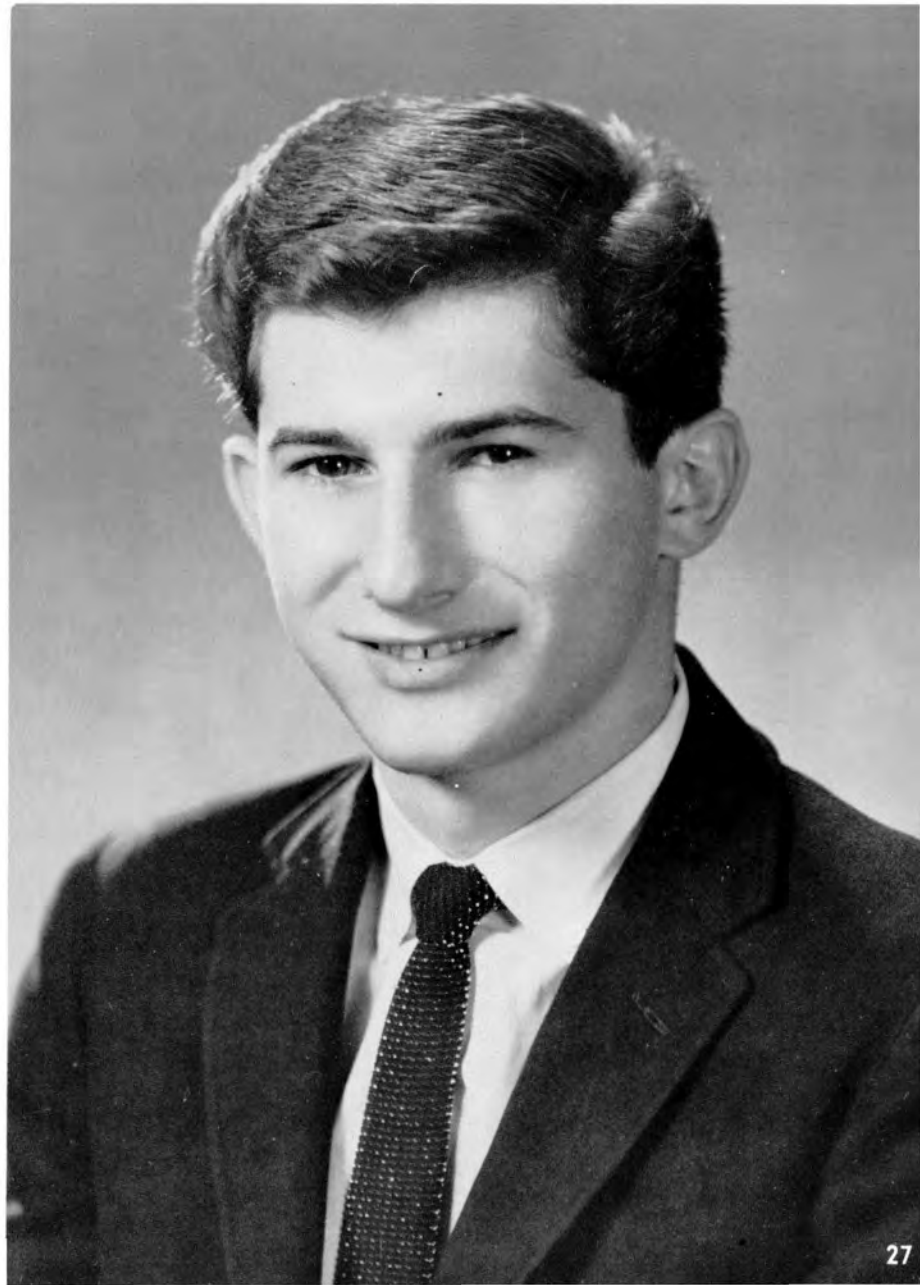

STUART BRUCE HARRIS

Entered—1957

Bouncing Bud, sometimes recognized as the class goof-off, is not always in such a somnolent state as he would have us believe. His work as business manager of the Crow's Nest has proved the point that he can get out and hustle if need be. As charter member of the short-lived Parking Lot Club, he was often among the missing—sometimes on a legitimate mission for the Crow's Nest but more often in search of a soft spot to lay his aching head. His garrulous good nature and his affable smile have brought groans from the faculty and many a chuckle from his classmates.

ARTHUR INGLE KALBFUS

Entered—1955

Laughable, likeable, loquacious Art—what can we say that he has not already said. This blithe spirit joined up as a freshman in 1955 and, as some malicious wit has pointed out, has been talking incessantly ever since. A blast on the horn, a cloud of smoke, and a “hi-ho, the blue olds”—and there was Art. An above average student, he has also contributed in athletics. In the classroom, many a serious discussion has been broken up beyond recall by one of his timely quips. By his tutoring efforts, Kalbfus-brand homework has turned up in many a strange hand, as he has attempted to lead the faltering steps of some tardy loiterer toward the goal of the fine art of study.

BRADLEY MORSE MEADE, JR.

Entered—1955

Mariner Meade, steady hand at the helm of the "Hesperus," has proven his ability to navigate the front driveway—but heaven knows how. Skipper Hall of the goodship Crow's Nest never could have kept a steady course without the careful charting of Assistant Editor Bo's 'n Brad. In both Varsity Soccer and Baseball, he turned in a better than commendable performance. Who can forget his faithful dogging of Flicker MacClaren's footsteps as the Clavus Camera Corps fought valiantly to meet its deadline! Stout fellow and solid citizen, Brad has achieved a substantial spot in the class superstructure.

JAMES HOWARD POTTER

Entered—1954

Jovial Jim, class joker, confirmed Mr. Webster's worst fears when he fell heir to Cotton Morgan's Pandora's Box of excuses—although, much to Jim's chagrin, they have been known to boomerang. The parking lot will be colorless and noiseless without Jim's constant sidekick, "Li'l Smoke." Mr. Smith will surely miss Potter's annual spring livery service when carnival time rolls around. Whenever an arduous task had to be accomplished, this character was Jimmy on the spot.

CLASS OF 1959

CLASS OF 1959

The Lucky Thirteen has taken advantage of every phase of school life—from the Student Council to the Four O'Clock Club—and even some avenues of endeavor not previously explored by former senior classes. In truth, it can be said that this is a most unique class. In the latter stages of its development, it has taken on a more unified quality than was heretofore evident. To the Junior Class they leave a record of things done and undone which should keep that group of young men sufficiently occupied.

Here stands the heterogeneous group destined to be next fall's neophyte senior class. Though a group of rugged individualists, they possess the ability to coalesce their varying energies, producing a truly pervasive spirit of cooperation. As a class, they rank on a par, in brain and brawn, with any that have gone before. Much is expected of them, and much will be accomplished. With the zest and verve which they have shown thus far, all eyes are turned towards them with great expectations.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Steady, behind-the-scenes efforts keynoted the activities of this year's Student Council, led by President Guy Comfort, Vice-President Butch Critchlow, and Demerit Officer Art Kalbfus. In addition to the usual responsibilities, such as the Christmas baskets of food and toys for some of Rochester's needy and the supervision of class elections, this year's Council strengthened its role in executing the disciplinary system, under the guidance of Mr. Drake, its advisor, and in taking over temporarily the job of proctoring many study halls. Aided by a committee of seniors, they revitalized the library and formulated a dress code in an effort to boost the morale of the student body. Perhaps one of their most significant contributions was the drawing-up of an athletic training code.

The Clavus staff, headed by Butch Critchlow and Bo Farnsworth, bravely faced the new year in September with high hopes and great plans, in spite of being faced with two devastating losses—the raided and closed Clavus Club and Jaxie, the architect and master planner of 1958's medal-winning bestseller. For a few weeks, there was much spirited, if spasmodic, activity—in the wheedling of ads from the local merchants and in planning the layout. This was closely followed by a dormant stage, as the grinding wheels slowed down—nay, halted—and the staff members took to their respective cocoons. This pupal stage was broken, late in the fall, by three developments in quick succession: the acquisition of a Speed Graphic camera; the completion of America's narrowest darkroom in the fastnesses of Mrs. Broadbook's coatroom; and the subsequent energetic activities of Alendale's one-man team portraitist, developer, enlarger, and printer, Craig MacClaren. Weeks of furious activity followed as Craig, guided by the sure touch of Mr. Johnston, mastered the tools of his trade. Inspired by this, the remaining members of the staff leaped into action and frantically met the deadline—a week late.

"Beaverboard Jungle" and "Cacophony Corner"—two new columns—are but a small indication of the ever-present revitalizing efforts of that small but loyal group of avid Allendale journalists who annually form the Crow's Nest staff, this year under the editorship of effervescent Ev Hall. Mr. Martius Elmore and his cohorts have again succeeded in raising the stature of Allendale's news-sheet, which though occasionally tardy in its deadline, covered the creekside from a news and views angle in a definitely lively fashion. Continued use of excellent photos, more emphasis on the reporting of fresh and pertinent events, and a judicious gleaning of the more salient highlights of the athletic contests have presented a much-read publication.

GLEE CLUB

This year the Allendale Glee Club was very fortunate in having the services of Mr. Ambros Saindon, whose mastery extends into the field of choral work. After several weeks of careful preparation, Mr. Saindon and the Glee Club, accompanied by our versatile teacher of the first and second grades, Mrs. Edna Broadbooks, presented a delightful program at the annual Christmas Breakfast. In addition to several well-executed Christmas selections by the entire group, the Lower School members sang Chenoweth's "Noel! Bells Are Ringing"—doubly enjoyable with the bell accompaniment by Tom Morris. Without a doubt, this endeavor has enlivened the year for both those who have participated and those who have listened. Mr. Saindon and Mrs. Broadbooks are to be congratulated for a fine achievement.

CITY CLUB

The group was organized this year under the sponsorship of Mr. Webster and Mr. Johnston. Each Wednesday they went to lunch at the Chamber of Commerce and listened to speakers whose subjects ranged from guided missiles to trends on the stock market. The objective of the club was to give juniors and seniors the opportunity to hear men, each an expert in his own field, speak authoritatively on a variety of timely topics.

JUNIOR COUNCIL

Reading Clockwise: P. Chapin, J. Ingle, L. Stalker, J. Hallett, S. Harris, F. Allen, P. Cowgill, W. Brewster.

Keystone of the activities in the Lower School was the Junior Council, which peppered Mr. Gage with imaginative suggestions of all colors of the spectrum of feasibility. An afternoon off weekly for those with Honors, revival of the 3:45 "Snack Bar," and ideas for a spring dance simulating last year's success were three of the more notable brainwaves which bore fruit. Along literary trails, the Library Committee flourished, and Miss Hoey's annual Book Fair was a smashing success, financially and otherwise. The weekly assemblies enlivened the academic week and enabled each Eighth Grader to regale the multitude with prolonged orations. An informal band proved to be an enjoyable and worthwhile, if noisy, venture in late winter. As spring approached, the defunct but ever-hopeful Treasure Chest stirred restlessly and made grandiose plans. Hopes for a Lower School play wafted about as the Clavus went to press. Perhaps the high point of the year was reached in the artistic endeavors inspired by the mother of Tony Russell in late winter and spring.

Although seven of last year's lettermen, led by block-busting halfback Butch Critchlow, returned to the squad this fall, the season started in less than spectacular fashion. After many rough and tumble practice sessions—witness Coach Partigan's battle-scarred shins and the brutal bruises of Mr. Best—the team learned to operate in aggressive style. This, coupled with astute juggling of the lineup, helped boost the team to a strong finish, notably the 8-0 rout of DeVeaux. In spite of the usual spate of injuries, particularly those of solid Mike McGill and fleet-footed Jack Remington, the spirit-charged team almost took Harley for the Cup, but the clock ran out with our Clover Street opponents the victors.

The All-Cups team claimed four of the squad: Captain Butch Critchlow, Bill Remington, Adam Kreuter, and Big Jim Dorschel—the latter as Honorable Mention.

This marked the second consecutive year of six-man football at Allendale. Coaches Smith, Johnston, and Marsland were faced with the job of building a Cups competitor around but two returning lettermen, Comfort and Werth. The result was a young, fast team which was able to chalk up a record of three wins against the same number of losses, and which finished second in the League. Unable to jell in the first half of the season, the team gave promise toward the end that it can look forward next fall to a well-balanced and aggressive aggregation. Two players—Comfort and Donahoe—had the honor of being chosen for the All-Cups squad.

Coach Tony Partigan was faced with a multitude of problems in his attempt to dress a varsity this year—a particularly rugged schedule, phenomenal lack of height, and but one returning letterman. The team was one which blew hot and cold—witness its tremendous showing against a strong Nichols team and its disappointing bout with Park. In final judgement, however, the record can be considered exemplary with a ten won, five lost overall tally and a last minute snatch of second place in the League. Mentor Partigan's basket sinkers managed to score 836 points to 616 for their opponents, a notable achievement. A bright omen for the future was the play of several fast and shifty sophomores and juniors.

SWIMMING

FIRST ROW: J. Ansley, S. Edgerton, R. Shaw, L. McDowell, D. Marks, D. Whitaker, P. McGraw

SECOND ROW: J. Remington, C. MacClaren, A. Kreuter, F. Allen, F. Lloyd, W. George

A late development which helped to take up the slack time between the tail end of the basketball season and spring vacation, the swimming team proved a strong but somewhat unlucky group. The wealth of experience and material indicated high hopes for the one formal contest, the All-Cups Meet at DeVeaux on March 21. One watery faux pas, however—the disqualification of the senior relay team because of jumping the gun—and Mr. Chase's expectations of a victory for the Upper School were drowned in a spray of chlorinated water, as Allendale ended with a 47-47 tie with DeVeaux. The Lower School managed a 35 win to DeVeaux's 16 and Park's 12. With "a little bit of luck," chances look fairer for next year.

SKI TEAM

This year for the second time in as many years, the snowmen of Allendale went to the Cups Meet and came home with the Golden Ski, emblematic of the League Championship. Chief Snowman Chase tells us that the job was no hardship on him and that the whole crew did a fine job, from Lanky Steve to Tiny Tim. We salute you and wish you a happy slalom.

FRONT: R. Ames, M. McGill, W. Erdle, G. Erdle
BACK: Mr. Best, D. Small, A. Kalbfus, G. Spence

Once more, by the dint of hard efforts, the Junior Varsity captured first place in the League competition. In his first year, Mr. Best is to be congratulated for putting on the floor a small but scrappy quintet. Building a team around one returning letterman, Mike McGill, he found considerable help from the Artful Dodger, Timmy Allyn, and from the energetic efforts of Doug Foxall, Bob Ames, Bill George and a host of others. Next year's hopes bloom high with the experience garnered during this campaign.

LOWER SCHOOL

SOCCER

BASKETBALL

This year the athletic record of the Lower School in outside competition showed a spotty quality. Stiffer competition, greener home material, and a policy of fuller player participation would partly account for this. Mr. Chase's thirty-two gridiron cohorts displayed some spirited football during their season, ending with a three-five record. Mr. Best's squad of inexperienced pitchmen, after a disappointing start, managed to tie Harley in a hard-fought final duel. The basketball group, coached by Mr. Johnston, was luckier with several experienced boys who worked smoothly and enjoyed a successful season with a three won, one lost record.

Noteworthy was the presence of many parents of the boys at most of the games. The aid provided by the father of Tom Forsyth in assisting Mr. Chase in football was much appreciated.

APACHE-MOHAWK

As we put this issue of the Clavus to bed, our scouts give us the sad but glad facts—in their yearly inter-club death struggle, the Apaches lead by the score of 90 scalps to the Mohawks' 45. Although it may look hopeless, the Mohawks frantically hope to pull off a coup by ambushing their fratricidal enemies in the spring conclaves. This year's events have been particularly exciting, and each one has been marked by bloody conflict and close scores. Chief Guy Comfort promises that his renegades will do all in their power to overcome the lead sported by Headman Critchlow and his band—Medicine Man Marsland to the contrary.

CARNIVAL TIME

As spring swings North each year, carnival time comes to Allendale. The gym blossoms out in a rash of gaily colored tissue paper, spring flowers, and hard working mothers. Tons of hot dogs and barrels of pop are ladled out to bulging little boys. Balloons, hats, canes and all kinds of games are here, not to mention lost children—plus distracted mothers. The parents and the faculty have the honor of putting on this annual gambol, some of whom are seen here putting the finishing touches on their creations.

PROJECT: GRADUATION '58

The Clavus presents a few scenes from last year's Commencement. An inspiring address by a former headmaster of Allendale, Mr. John Webster of Greenwich Country Day School, was the highlight of the ceremony. A total of sixteen seniors received their diplomas from Mr. Harmar Brereton, President of the Board of Trustees, and Mr. Critchlow. As usual, many of the parents and friends of the school gathered to witness the graduation of the Class of 1958.
